It was on November 15, 1879, that the idea of forming the present Press Club first took root in fruitful ground. On that date, Samuel L.Clemens (Mark Twain), who was a guest of the Reception Committee on the occasion of the reception and banquet in honor of General U. S. Grant, was entertained by a number of journalists, and while festivity and flow of soul held joyous sway, he turned to Franc B. Wilkie, of The Times, and Mr. Melville E. Stone, of The News, and asked: Why is it the journalists of Chicago do not have an organization similar to the New York...
