LITTLE MISS MERIT BADGE: A MEMOIR

Wyatt-MacKenzie Publishing. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 242 pages. Dimensions: 8.5in. x 5.5in. x 0.9in. I was hooked by the age of 6. So begins the memoir of a girl whose 17-year-old parents dropped ice cubes down her diapers to make her dance, whose bare-chested grandmother gave her singing lessons, whose brother tried to get rid of her with a strategically dropped boulder, and who moved so many times she barely got desk assignments at school, let alone had time to make any friends. The on-going, outrageous dysfunction, and denial in her life was enough to turn anyone into an addict. Nationally recognized university professor and internationally renowned speaker Ronda Beaman confesses her drug of choice was earning Girl Scout badges. Lots of them. And she never quite kicked the habit. LITTLE MISS MERIT BADGE takes readers through oddball adventures Beaman had earning her many badges as she explores the nature of resilience and the accomplishment addiction many young girls develop to compensate for growing up in a challenging environment. ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Former Girl Scout, Dr. Ronda Beaman was the first recipient of the National Education Associations Excellence in the Academy: Art of Teaching award, as well as mother of USA Today's Most Creative Family, and is a faculty resource for the Young Presidents Organization (YPO) University. A highly regarded speaker, she also directs leadership studies at California Polytechnic University and is Chief Creative Officer at PEAK Learning, Inc. She is a national thought leader for The American Health Network and her work has been featured on major media including USA Today, CBS, NBC and Fox. Dr. Ronda Beaman is available to speak at troop meetings, book clubs and readings, or writing seminars. Find her at LittleMissMeritBadge.com. REVIEWS . . . a warm and wise account of what it...
