Had one ray diverged from the other, suppose in the line MP, it would, by being refracted toward its perpendicular LB, have been made either to diverge less, be parallel, or to converge. Let the line ID be produced to K; and if the ray had converged, so as to have decribed the Une NBL, it would then have been coincident with its perpendicular, and have suffered no refraction. If it had proceeded with less convergency toward any point beyond L in the line IK, it would have been made to converge more by being refracted toward the perpendicular LB, which converges more than it; and had it proceeded with more convergency than BL, that is, toward any point between D and L, being refracted toward the perpendicular, it...
